

The Washington Post

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 26, 2001

VARIETY AT VISIONS

A bunch of special screenings take place this week at Visions Cinema/Bistro/Lounge.

Also as part of Visions' community programming series, local filmmaker Alvin Ecarma screens "Lethal Force" on Tuesday at 9:15. Fresh from the Austin Film Festival, the proudly cheesy B-movie about treacherous hit men blends fake blood with groaning humor and surprisingly well-choreographed action sequences courtesy of cinematographer and fight director Eric Thornett. Along with the improbably named star Cash Flagg Jr. (who looks suspiciously like the director), look for cameos by Dave Nuttycombe and Pat Carroll of the legendary Langley Punks film collective, as well as Carl Cephas, president of the Washington Psychotronic Film Society. Admission is $6.